

BOSS BARNES IS A WINNER BUT JUST MISSES DEFEAT; MANY CITIES REPUBLICAN

Late Returns Indicate Watt
Victory in Albany by 2,000 Majority.

BETTER ELEMENT BOLTS.

Dr. George Lunn Returned as Mayor of Schenectady by Large Majority.

ALBANY, Nov. 5.—William Barnes, Republican boss of Albany, appears to have elected his local ticket after the hardest and bitterest fight of his career. Early returns indicated his candidate for Mayor, James R. Watt, the incumbent, might be needed out by Capt. Reynolds King Townsend, a war veteran, but Watt seemingly has pulled through.

At a late hour, with about half the votes counted, Watt was leading and his friends were claiming that his majority would run to 2,000. The Democrats disputed this, insisting that there still remained a chance for Capt. Townsend to win.

Powerful elements were arrayed against Barnes in the present election for the first time since he wrested Albany from the grip of the Democratic bosses many years ago. Organized labor endorsed Capt. Townsend, and a vigorous campaign was conducted under the direction of the veteran Democratic leader Patrick H. McCabe.

Every argument that could be used against Barnes was brought into play. He was charged with dominating the actions of every member of the City Administration. Townsend, an inexperienced speaker at the outset of the campaign, developed into a forceful talker and assailed Barnes at a half dozen meetings nightly.

Watt, in language that was none too polite, was accused by his Democratic opponents of being the puppet of Barnes. Investigators for the Democrats dug into the city archives to prove their contention that only politically favored contractors connected with the Barnes machine received city work.

Through his newspaper and assisted by scores of anti-tailorators, Barnes defended his leadership and the conduct of his city officials. It was evident he realized that for the first time in his long career he was facing possible political annihilation. Barnes always has had the support of the so-called "better element" living in the desirable residential wards here. But this year, for the first time, the Democrats were able to break into his pluralities and drag them down to a level that pointed to a serious break in the Barnes machinery.

Without conceding the election of Barnes's ticket, the Democrats announced to-night that if the final count resulted in defeat of their candidates, they would return to the battle with more vigor next year.

They predicted that the blow struck at Barnes this time was the beginning of the end of his regime as the dominant Republican figure in State as well as local politics.

The soldier voters, incensed by what they look upon as the autocracy of the entrenched Barnes organization of office holders, voted solidly for Capt. Townsend. The women were also strong for the war veteran.
